LACEDLE LOCALS.

—Laclede, Mo., Sept. 23, 1878.

The B. & S. W. R. R. are digging a large well near their tank, also draining out their pond. Water is getting very scarce in their pond and well.

A young man, a stranger, appeared before our constable on Sunday morning and claimed that he had been robbed at the depot. The constable went with him to the depot but refused to search any of the men pointed out as the parties suspected, without a warrant. The parties, however, agreed to let the victim search them. He found plenty of money on their person but could not identify his money. I don't know how to sympathize with him. I can identify all the money I ever lost or have got at present, or even expect to lose, by a shield on one side and a figure 5 on the other.

On Thursday the 19th, as per appointment, Senator Cockrell spoke here. The wind blew a perfect gale and the dust was almost blinding; and the consequence was that very few turned out to hear the distinguished Senator.
